Luke's reflections

Table of contents

2022-01-17

- Realized Zoom wasn't the best for doing these types of activities, so will try out Discord next time!
- Coordinating before hand was tough…

2022-04-07

- Biggest challenge is coordinating and organizing how we collaborate. Without a good structure and guide to know what to work on, it sometimes feels like floundering around, unsure of what to work on.
- Having a guide for "tasks to complete" is really helpful to stop "paralysis" of not knowing what to do next.

2022-08-05

- Big challenge is coming back to the project and not knowing what to work on next. So making / updating the contributing guidelines with tips on how to get caught up.

2023-05-12

- Been a while since I got back to this, so its good to start up again. The README's helped and setting up the targets infrastructure and pipeline I think will help us later on as the project continues.

2024-06-06

- Progress has been going great, the use of a targets pipeline has really helped, especially after coming back to work on this after a while. There are some areas that I wish could be more automated, but I think that it might not really be possible for now.

2025-01-08

- Back at it for the new year and we're moving along a lot more! Finished reading the documents, charted them, and now we're in the paper writing phase! :tada:
- I took some time making a website to more easily showcase our work as well as to auto-generate the PDF when we upload it to Zenodo and potentially to a journal. Plus it looks nicer and makes it clearer how we'll structure things, at least for me.
- It felt much smoother getting back into things this time. I think the structure we've set up has really helped with that.

Bibliography